This four-story town house maintains its original elegant detailing and is complemented by customized items, including doors, windows, shelves, sinks, and a staircase, as well as various pieces of cabinetry for the kitchen, living room, and bathrooms. Exquisite materials and finishes—rustic timber floors, polished concrete, and tadelakt surfaces—serve as backdrop to a fantastic collection of vintage furniture, light fixtures, and artwork. The design stands out for its clean lines, color palette of muted colors, and rich materials, which combined achieve a sophisticated and refined aesthetic.

The owners of the town house purchased the top two floors first. Then came the two lower floors a few years later. The refurbishing of the building resulted in the creation of a three-story home with a ground floor extension, while the basement was turned into a separate two-bedroom unit.

The entertainment center is fully integrated into the space, with a large flat screen mounted into a niche. A long, low wood cabinet acts as a shelf for the niche, anchoring it to the dark floor.
Original architectural features, such as fireplaces and brick walls, offer a sense of history. Light fixtures and mirrors add dimension and a sense of opulence.

The kitchen is an area of high contrast; the clean lines and smooth surfaces of the wall unit and island are a counterpoint to the roughness of the brick wall opposite. Two crystal chandeliers hang above a long table. When lit, they pick up the warm tones of the brick.

Dark, muted colors can really set a sophisticated tone in home décor. They make a space look cozy yet elegant. They also add depth, especially when they serve as backdrops to lighter-color items. Shiny objects in particular sparkle with the right lighting.

While the new design maintains the original architectural features of the building, new elements are conceived so as not to compete for attention. Nonetheless, these new elements, like the staircase, don’t lack in eye-catching detail.

1. Three timber posts
2. Two square-edge, wall-mounted bronze handrails
3. Three flush doors with concealed hinges under staircase
4. Concealed stringer under staircase
5. Mitered oak, flush door detail
6. Structural ply backing to doors

Even spaces like dressing or powder rooms can make design statements. Turn them into rooms where you would like to spend time. Use your favorite colors, and fill these spaces with some of your most cherished items.
